Child, Toddling After Mother, Drowns In Local Stream

Slips Off Bridge To Small Creek

A child drowned shortly after noon Saturday in East Stroudsburg when, while toddling after his mother, he slipped from a bridge into a creek.

The boy, David Reinlieb, 18-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Reinlieb, of Brooklyn, had been raking leaves together on the premises of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Oloff, 42 W. Broad St., East Stroudsburg, where they were visiting. The Oloffs are the child's grandparents.

About 12:15 p. m. the boy and his mother left the raking and started walking along W. Broad St., according to East Stroudsburg borough officers.

Mrs. Reinlieb was walking a little ahead, police said, the son toddling along behind. The mother was awaiting the arrival of her husband from New York City.

Mrs. Reinlieb turned around and found her son nowhere in sight. She had just walked over the small bridge at W. Broad and Rake Sts., police said. Thinking her son might have run back into the Oloffs' yard again, she went back and looked for him there.

Then she returned to the bridge, glanced down into the creek and saw her son's body, police said. Mrs. Reinlieb's screams brought assistance from neighbors. The boy's body was taken from the water about six or seven minutes after he fell in, police said.

The child was rushed to the office of Dr. Philip F. Ehrig, 101 Washington St., East Stroudsburg, but attempts to revive him were unsuccessful.

Police said the spot where the child fell in was five or six feet deep. It was a channel which had been dredged out by the borough to prevent water from flowing over the road during rainy seasons.

The child's body was released to the Lanterman funeral home, East Stroudsburg, later transferred to the Clark funeral home, Stroudsburg.

The boy's body was returned to New York City yesterday for services at 1 p. m. in Manhattan. Burial was at Mount Hebrew Cemetery, Flushing, L. I.

Fresh Troops Storm Vainly Against Reds

Seoul, Monday (AP)—Fresh South Korean troops, supported by possibly the greatest artillery barrage since World War Two, stormed the frowning heights of Triangle Hill in waves Sunday—only to be blasted off the slopes by a torrent of Chinese artillery fire.

For eight straight hours, Allied guns ringed around Kumhwa on the Central Front roared, and thundered with every type of shell in their arsenal. More than 42,000 rounds of fire were shot at Triangle Hill and Red gun positions.

Three Hurt In Collision

Portland—Three residents here and four others were injured in a three-car crash on Route 390 near Sellersville Saturday.

At Sellersville's Grandview Hospital in "fair condition are Howard Ducklow, 30; his mother, Mrs. Emma Ducklow, 49; and Miss Leota Montrose, 31, all of Portland.

Also hospitalized were four Tamaqua residents, who were injured seriously.

Police said another car collided head-on with the Ducklow vehicle. Both were demolished. A third car smashed into the wreckage.

Damages Heavy In Local Crash

Damages of $500 were caused at 10:25 a. m. yesterday in the collision of two cars on the Mount Zion road, off N. Fifth St., north of Stroudsburg.

Stroudsburg State police said Raymond H. Snyder, 28, East Stroudsburg RD3, was driving east and Joseph Stout, 25, of 58 N. Third St., Stroudsburg, was driving in the opposite direction.

The two vehicles collided in passing, police said. There were no injuries. Damages were $300 to Snyder's car and $200 to Stout's.

STUDY THIS DIAGRAM BEFORE VOTING

MAKE SURE YOUR VOTE COUNTS! When you go to the polls on Tuesday, Nov. 4 you will be casting your ballot in one of the most hotly-contested and stormiest presidential elections in recent history. Like all other Americans you want to make sure your vote counts—make sure you're voting for the right man—the man of your choice. If you are one of the 7,000 men and women in this county who have not received proper instruction on how to operate a voting machine you owe it to yourself to study the above diagram thoroughly. It is a diagram of a voting machine—the kind of machine you will be using to cast your vote Nov. 4. It's a simple machine to use—but like an automobile it must be used properly or it won't do the things you want it to. Study the diagram carefully. The steps which you must follow when you enter the voting booth are numbered in the exact order in which you must perform them. This diagram is published as a public service by The Daily Record. You are urged to clip the entire panel and take it with you when you go to vote tomorrow.

GOP Charges Attempt Made To Set Up Farmers Prices

New York (AP)—GOP supporters of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower last night accused the Democrats of trying to "rig farm prices for political advantage" in a move to win Tuesday's presidential election.

Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brannan retorted: "That is a cheap political unmitigated lie."

The charge—echoing a similar contention by the Republicans after President Truman's victory in 1948—came as the GOP high command completed plans for closing Eisenhower's campaign in Boston tomorrow night with a nation-wide television and radio vote appeal costing an estimated quarter of a million dollars.

The assertion that the Democrats are trying to rig farm prices was made in a statement by Eisenhower's political chief of staff, Gov. Sherman Adams of New Hampshire.

He based the accusation on a telegram to Eisenhower from Sen. George Aiken of Vermont, who is the senior Republican member of the Senate Agriculture Committee. "The reprehensible attempt of the opposition to frighten the American people into voting to continue the present administration has reached a new extreme in the farm areas throughout the country in the last 48 hours," Aiken wired Eisenhower.

"Reports have reached me which indicate that the administration has broken the price of corn by dumping an excessive amount of corn owned by the Commodity Credit Corporation on the market in recent months, and at the same time has been holding back on the food purchasing program for the ECA Economic Cooperation Administration."

Brannan told a reporter in Washington: "The price of corn has seasonally gone down as it does whenever a big crop is harvested, as it is at this time of the year. I am completely confident that no farmer is being deceived or fooled by this kind of tactic."

"There is no way in which the government can influence the price of corn at this period of the year, when large volume of corn are being harvested. The government has little if any stocks of corn and the sale thereof could not materially affect the market price of corn, even if we were selling it, which we are not."

"As a matter of fact it is only the off-quality corn which is selling below support prices because every farmer knows he can put his corn in storage and secure the support price on it."

"This is a continuation of the effort of the Republican party to shake off the effects of the 1948 legislation, which was the most vicious treatment dealt American farmers since the 1920s."

How Lucky You Are To Be Able To Vote As You Please On Your Nation's Leaders

By William L. Ryan
(AP Foreign News Analyst)

No matter who wins tomorrow, you, the American voter, are a lucky person. In case you have neglected during the heat of the campaign to count your blessings, perhaps a bit of pre-voting reflection would be in order—reflection, for example, on what happens under Communism.

If you were voting in the USSR: You would be routed out of your home, whether you wanted to vote or not, by the agitator responsible for you, and sent to the voting place. You would enter a room gaily decorated and festooned with slogans about glory to Stalin and victory of Communism.

In the center, you would see a large table of election officials. You would identify yourself by showing your passport. Without such a passport, you not only would have no job, you would be arrested. It is a document you have to carry with you at all times.

You would be given two ballots, one for the Council of the Union and one for the Council of Nationalities. Each ballot would contain one name. To one side of the room you would see a curtained space. If you thought for a moment of rejecting these candidates that had been handed to you, the thing to do would be to go into that curtained place. From then on, you would be a marked man.

So, if you knew what was good for you—and Soviet voters know—you would merely fold the ballot and drop it into the box out in the open, without daring to put a mark on it.

If you were among the early voters, you would see a show put on by the Young Communist League: Young people marching in formation to vote for the first time, led by a factory band and harangued by orators.

You would have experienced a fervent "campaign," even though there was little pretense of a choice for the voters. Every means would have been taken to rout out the voters and get them to the polls to roll up that "999 per cent" turnout of which Moscow seems so inordinately proud. Whether you had got out on your own accord to vote or not, you could be sure a party man would be around to your house during the day to ask whether you had done your duty. If you hadn't, he would trundle you out to the polling place with little ceremony.

The man who called on you would be a member of the district or section "Agitbrigada," or agitation brigade. He would be assigned to this job by his local "Agitjunkt," or agitation point, the closest thing you would see to a party election headquarters.

Your choice would be one party, "the bloc of Communists and non-party people." The latter phrase is just window-dressing. It is all Communist.

You would be faced by only one issue: The continued dictatorship of Stalinist hierarchy. You wouldn't dare question it.

Then, next day, you would read in the paper lines like this, taken from Pravda after the last Soviet "election":

"Where else in the world is there a system like ours, where 100 per cent of the voters in Stalin district voted for our great leader and teacher Comrade Stalin?"

Where else, indeed?

Next White House Hostess Will Be Great Hand-Shaker

Washington (AP)—The next hostess in the White House will be a cosmopolitan and a good handshaker. That holds true whether Adlai Stevenson or Dwight Eisenhower is elected president Tuesday.

Both Mamie Eisenhower, wife of the Republican nominee, and Elizabeth "Buffie" Stevenson Ives, 62, of the Democratic candidate and his official hostess as governor of Illinois, are qualified.

They look you directly in the eye. They smile easily. Both have a firm handshake that suggests warm personal interest. And they share a liking for people and parties, an attribute which is at least desirable in the job.

Their gifts in the art of handshaking itself assumes real importance when it is realized that last May alone, Mrs. Harry Truman shook hands with about 10,000 people at receptions and teas in the newly reopened White House.

The role of first lady or official White House hostess is an exacting one. It is hard work over long hours. Her manners are watched, her words quoted.

Mrs. Ives, wife of a retired career diplomat, and Mrs. Eisenhower have had extensive experience in entertaining. Each knows the detailed planning that goes into making a function move smoothly.

Both have lived in many parts of the world. The Eisenhowers during their military days were stationed at numerous posts.

Military Vote Will Be Light

Washington (AP)—The military vote will be little more than a drop in the presidential election bucket on Tuesday if the fighting forces run anywhere near true to the form of 1944.

Whether the presence of a career military man, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, on the ballot as the Republican presidential nominee will have any bearing can't be guessed accurately.

The 1944 general election is the only one available for comparison because it is the only war-time election since that of 1864 that has been surveyed in terms of the military vote.

The soldier vote in the election which returned Abraham Lincoln to office constituted 5.8 per cent of the total popular vote cast that year.

Eighty years later, in the midst of another big war, the military vote slipped to 5.6 per cent.

Pennsylvania Is Listed As Pivotal State

Philadelphia (AP)—Pennsylvania was listed last night as one of six states to watch in deciding the presidential election—giving new significance to its name "The Keystone State."

Attention was focused on Pennsylvania along with New York, Massachusetts, Michigan, Illinois and California as the key states which may swing Tuesday's election either way—Democratic or Republican.

Of this group only New York has a large number of electoral votes for president, 45 compared to Pennsylvania's 32. California also has 32.

The balance-wheel importance of William Penn's one-time colony was pointed up by tours of the state by the two major presidential candidates—Democrat Adlai Stevenson and Republican Dwight D. Eisenhower—during the last week of the campaign.

Large crowds and cheering for both candidates left pollsters still guessing the outcome of Keystone state voting.

Officials of both parties predict winning margins of 150,000 for their candidates. That's the figure Sen. M. Harvey Taylor, state Republican chairman, said Eisenhower will carry the state. It coincides with a similar forecast made by Maurice Splain Jr., Democratic state chairman, in favor of Stevenson.

The State Elections Bureau looks to a turnout of 80 per cent or more of the commonwealth's record high registration of 5,340,936 votes. The lineup favors the GOP, by 3,128,773 to 2,212,163. Another 74,673 are registered as non-partisan or with minor parties.

The polls open at 7 a. m. and close at 8 p. m.

Just as Pennsylvania rates a key position among states in gauging the national outcome, so do the cities of Philadelphia and Pittsburgh rest on the scales, balancing the weight of voting within the commonwealth.

If recent trends in voting are an indication, Philadelphia and Allegheny County containing Pittsburgh may provide Democratic ballast to offset the normally heavy Republican vote in the rural counties.

Despite an almost two-to-one Republican registration in Philadelphia the Democrats have won the city in every presidential election since 1936 and broke a 60-year-old GOP hold on the city government last year.

Pittsburgh has been Democratic since 1932.

In addition to voting for president and vice-president, Pennsylvanians will elect a United States senator, 30 congressmen, four state-wide candidates, 25 state senators and 208 assemblymen.

The fortunes of all these candidates, regardless of individual popularity, could be determined by either a Democratic or a Republican landslide.

Although a century ago the then rural Pennsylvania was largely Democratic—with governors elected usually by splinter groups—the Keystone state's more recent political history has been predominantly Republican.

Republican candidates have campaigned on the theme of "it's time for a change," but their party has given up state control only once in a half-century. In presidential elections, however, Pennsylvania went Democratic in 1936, 1940 and 1944.

Thomas E. Dewey put the state back in the GOP column by a 149,000 majority in 1948.

HST Releases Korean Data

By Ernest B. Vaccaro

Independence, Mo. (AP)—President Truman last night made public a long-time top secret document embodying agreement by the Joint Chiefs of Staff in 1947 to the withdrawal of U.S. occupation forces from Korea.

Truman announced he had officially declassified the document in the light of what he called the "many untrue accusations" that have been made in the bitter political campaign which comes to a close today.

Truman has repeatedly charged that Dwight D. Eisenhower, the GOP presidential nominee, shared responsibility for the decision to withdraw the troops while Army Chief of Staff and a member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Both Sides Predicting Tomorrow

By Douglas B. Cornell

America's voting millions, probably more of them than ever before in history, choose tomorrow between Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson for President.

Only flashes of wind-up oratory are left—last minute efforts to pull out the vote or sway the undecided. And then it is up to the people themselves, an estimated 55 million of them, to decide whether it is to be Stevenson and another four years of Democratic rule or Eisenhower and a change to the GOP.

From both sides in the titanic political struggle came just what anyone would expect—predictions of victory for their man. But now the decision is pretty much up to millions of individuals. For most of the fervor and the furor of the presidential campaign subsided yesterday in the calm of a quiet autumn Sabbath.

Gen. Eisenhower attended services in St. Paul's Chapel at Columbia University in New York City. Stevenson went to the Unitarian church in his old home town at Bloomington, Ill., a church his grandfather, Jesse Fell, helped found in 1859.

Eisenhower heard a sermon built around the thought that "there is no escape" from a decision on the issues of the campaign. Stevenson heard one that described men as masters of their own destiny and cautioned against "blindly following the party line."

For the campaign finale, Stevenson goes to Chicago tonight, while Eisenhower winds up in Boston. Each will appear on nation-wide television-radio programs with his vice-presidential running mate—Sen. John J. Sparkman of Alabama for the Democrats, Sen. Richard M. Nixon of California for the Republicans.

All around the political circuit Sunday was pretty much a day of rest. And for the most part, there will be little campaigning today. But Eisenhower is giving the last day before election to a double-edged drive in Massachusetts.

What the Republican nominee is after are 16 electoral votes, in a battleground state that has gone Democratic since 1928, plus reelection of GOP Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, who has been one of his warmest supporters.

President Truman was home from the political wars, too, resting up at Independence, Mo., from thousands of miles of whistle-stop cause.

All told, Truman, Stevenson and Sparkman put in something like 85,000 miles on the road and made more than 800 campaign speeches. Eisenhower, Nixon and Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, covered about 103,000 miles and got off nearly 650 speeches.

It was a campaign that reached not only into meeting halls and arenas, but also into living rooms and family circles. Television brought the men and their words closer to the people than ever before.

Registration figures in state after state climbed to new peaks. More than 75 million persons made themselves eligible to vote. And they were expected to do so tomorrow in record numbers, far surpassing the previous high mark of 49,820,000 in 1940—the year of the Roosevelt-Willkie campaign.

The very size of the prospective vote added to the uncertainty about the outcome. More than 75 million persons have come of voting age since 1948. But what will these new voters do?

Women outnumber men on the list of eligible. With their interest whetted by TV and radio, will they vote, as many have in the past, as their husbands do, or will they exercise a greater degree of voting independence?

Which way will the independent vote swing? Where will the people who make up their minds at the last minute, or who decline to tell anyone their preferences, wind up tomorrow?

Those are factors that kept the professional politicians and the pollsters guessing right to the end. Nobody professed to have the absolute answers.

Pennsylvania's Division Celebrates Anniversary

Goeppingen, Germany—The 28th Infantry Division, the former Pennsylvania National Guard, was in full glory here recently as it celebrated its 35 Anniversary.

It was a proud day for Division Commander, Major General Daniel B. Strickler, who has served with the Keystone Division on every later dances at the Officers' club of its active duty.

But it was also an illustrious day for every other 28th Division Infantryman, from the lowest private to the highest general, all of whom, with the aid of a little spit and polish and military snap, wanted to remind the world of the fighting spirit, the combat preparedness, and the rich tradition of the "Bloody Bucket."

Though dispersed throughout a large part of Southern Germany, each unit of the Division, each Infantry Regiment, each Artillery Battalion, and each separate specialist company, marked the occasion with a full-scale review and such other activities that would accept the Keystone's mission: to take its part in the NATO army to help defend the free world from aggression.

At Division Headquarters here, a football game and aerial acrobatics by the Light Aviation Section highlighted the afternoon. In the evening there was a barbecue.

EM Clubs. But to emphasize an overall solemnity, a "most combat-prepared" soldier was selected and awarded a plaque at the morning review by General Strickler. The winner was Corporal George Higgins, L. Company, 109th Infantry.

At Heilbronn, the 112th Infantry and 229th Field Artillery provided drill team competition, organized athletics, crew-served weapons contests, special services shows and evening dances.

At Gablingen, 109th Infantrymen had, besides organized athletics, a

The 110th Infantry, at Ulm, sparked its celebration with a soccer game in the afternoon; it also enjoyed several organized parties and dances in the evening. During the morning review, Colonel Henry K. Fluck, departing Regimental commander, made his farewell address.

At the other Division areas, Dillingen (109th Field Artillery), Ellwangen (103 Medics and 103 Engineers), and Leipheim (628th Tank Battalion and 28th Recon Co.) similar programs of organized athletics, festive dinners, and evening parties were given.

But the true spirit of the day, a spirit that will long be remembered by everyone in the "Bloody Bucket" Division, was best expressed when the Division and unit bands played throughout the day, the Division Theme Song, "Roll On, Twenty-Eighth."

Auto Dealers Association Will Give Free Rides To Polls

Calls Will Bring Autos To Any Home

If you have no way to get to the polls tomorrow the Automobile Dealers Association of Monroe County will drive you there.

That was the report yesterday of Parke Kunkle, operator of the Pocono Automobile Co., and president of the association.

Kunkle said there are 12 association members cooperating to see that every registered resident gets to the polling booth in what promises to be the biggest election in U. S. history.

The members got together, arranged to have as many automobiles on call as are necessary to provide rides for those who need them.

It was to be a simple process, Kunkle said. The resident who needs a ride simply picks up his telephone and calls the nearest dealer listed. The dealer will see that a car takes the telephoner to the polls.

Each dealer will have one or more cars at his garage or showrooms, gassed up, with a driver, and ready to assist in getting out a record county vote, Kunkle said.

Rides will be provided—to and from the polls, of course—throughout the hours of voting, 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

If you can't find a way to get to the polls—call the dealer in the following list who is nearest to your home. He'll see that you get there, Kunkle said:

Haynes Motors, Stroudsburg, 198; Lester G. ## His Patience Goes Unrewarded

London, (AP)—In 1932 a reader wrote the London Times to complain "against the preposterous rule which allows two services to the server in tennis."

That letter was signed "Sexagenarian."

The writer must be one of the most patient and determined persons in Britain.

In 1943 he wrote another letter making the same protest.

He identified himself as "Septuagenarian."

There has been a world war in the interval and a troubled peace but this week he was back again voicing the same complaint and signing himself "Octogenarian."

Both Parties Claim About 21 States; Each Says New York, Illinois In Fold

By Leonard Randolph

Both Democrats and Republicans staked out claims on the White House yesterday as their candidates rode down the homestretch of one of the longest and most controversial elections in recent history.

At National Headquarters in New York, the Republicans laid claim to 21 states while the Springfield, Ill. office of the Democrats said that party would win 22 states in tomorrow's election.

One of the most interesting parts of the two claims is the fact that both parties think they will carry critical New York and Illinois.

Here's the way the campaign claims size up:

Republican estimate — Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Connecticut, New York, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota, North Dakota, Colorado, Idaho and Oregon. Electoral total: 267.

Democratic estimate — Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New York, West Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Mississippi, Tennessee, Kentucky, Illinois, Minnesota, Missouri, Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Texas, Montana, Arizona, Washington. Electoral total: 275.

Since a candidate needs a total of 266 electoral votes this puts a Republican victory on a close margin with only one vote to spare.

Neither party considers California a setup for the election, leaving that state in the "doubtful" category along with Virginia, Wyoming, Utah, Nevada and New Mexico.

This bloc of 58 electoral votes holds the power to "swing the election."

One of the biggest question-marks in the current election is California, where cross-filing of political tickets further complicates an already complex situation.

Republicans are counting on Nixon's political pull in his home state to drag the state into the GOP column. Democrats argue that, in 1948 (with Earl Warren, the State's extremely popular governor who runs on both tickets as the GOP Veep nominee) the California voters gave Harry Truman a 20,000-vote lead over Dewey.

In that same election, Californians cast 1,228 votes for J. Strom Thurmond, leader of the States' righters and 190,381 votes for Henry Wallace. Most of the latter votes are expected to end up in the Stevenson column this year.

Virginia's 12 votes are no longer a part of the "Solid South" and have not been since before 1948, when Truman had 200,786 votes to Dewey's 172,070; Thurmond's 43,393 and a 2,047 tally for Wallace.

With Sen. Harry Byrd, a long-time critic of Harry Truman and deficit spending, on record as opposing Stevenson's nomination, the Democrats no longer consider Virginia a "certain" state for their ticket.

The Democratic national ticket is being actively opposed in three other Southern states this year—Texas, Florida and Tennessee.

Although the Democrats still claim all three states with a total electoral vote of 45, heavy opposition has been built up by some local politicians in an effort to splinter the strength of the party.

Of primary importance in the estimate released this week by the two parties is the claim both of them lay to Illinois' 27 electoral votes.

Republicans are basing their claim on a heavy "downstate" vote in the traditionally-GOP regions of Illinois which, they feel, will off-balance the predominantly Democratic vote of Chicago and Cook county.

Democrats cite the overwhelming victory of Adlai Stevenson in the 1948 gubernatorial election when Stevenson won by more than 500,000 votes—the largest plurality in the state's history.

Neighboring Iowa—which upset the pollsters and local politicians in 1948 by giving Truman a victory—this year is again set up in the GOP column, as are Michigan and Ohio.

New York, with its whopping total of 45 electoral votes, is one of the most sought-after states in the union.

Republicans claim to a GOP victory seem largely based on what the party thinks will be a large pro-Eisenhower vote upstate which will counteract large Stevenson majorities in metropolitan centers.

A large (509,559) Progressive Party vote in 1948, however, is considered largely responsible for Dewey's victory in New York state.

This year, the Progressives (running little-known West coast lawyer Vincent Hallinan) seem likely to pull much less than the half-million votes of 1948.

In order to win the state as a whole, Democrats concede that Stevenson must pile up an unusually-large (700,000) majority in New York City alone.

Democrats, in their pre-election eve analysis of the electoral situation yesterday, laid no claim to Pennsylvania's 32 votes.

Both parties apparently, are anticipating a GOP victory in the Keystone state.

"Neither party is predicting a 'national landslide' for its candidate, although there have been references to a 'possible' landslide during the closing stages of the campaign."

An indication of how "close" the election may be is found in the total electoral votes "claimed as certain" by each party.

With 275 electoral votes (including New York and Illinois) the Democrats would be unable to squeak by if they lost either one without picking up the "doubtful" states.

The same is true of GOP claims, where the 267 electoral vote total allows only a one-state "margin for error."

Nationwide polls conducted by Gallup, Roper and Crossley indicate a victory for Dwight Eisenhower. The pollsters are eager to impress the "uncertainty" of their predictions on the reading public, however.

Predictions from the parties, like the "public opinion poll," have little or no bearing on which way a citizen votes in an election. The pollsters know, only to well, that behind that curtain "anything goes."

Car Strikes Boy Crossing Local Street

A boy crossing N. Courtland St. to buy a hamburger was hit by a car's rear fender about 10:30 Saturday night in East Stroudsburg.

The lad, Richard Miller, 6, suffered a bruise on the right knee and brush burns on the stomach. The child was taken to the General Hospital, East Stroudsburg, for treatment, then returned to the home of Mrs. Mary Miller, 289 Harris St., an aunt with whom he is living.

Officers Donald Quick and Travis Seese were driving on N. Courtland St. in the police car when they saw a car ahead zigzag on the road.

They halted at the scene to see Frederick F. Notz, 43, of 5 Grandview St., East Stroudsburg, run back to pick up young Miller.

Notz explained to police that the boy had run out from behind a parked automobile. Notz swerved sharply to avoid the boy, but the right rear fender apparently brushed the youth, police said.

The boy said he was crossing the street to buy some hamburgers at the East Stroudsburg Diner.

Victor Shotko Dies At Home

Victor Shotko, 67, Easton, a frequent visitor in Monroe County, died at 9 a.m. yesterday at his home.

Born in Poland, he lived for three years in Scranton, spent the past 35 years at Easton. He visited often at the home of his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George B. Forster, East Stroudsburg.

Other survivors include his wife, Catherine; sons, Edward, Victor and Joseph, all of Easton; another daughter, Mrs. Joseph Zimmer, Easton; and seven grandchildren.

High requiem mass will be held at 10 a.m. Wednesday at St. Michael's R. C. Church, Easton, with burial at St. Mary Magdalene's Cemetery, Easton.

Friends may call at the Katinis funeral home, Easton, between 7 and 9 p.m. Tuesday.

Scouts Join Vote Drive For Tuesday

The morning after Halloween, Monroe County householders found on their door-knobs a different kind of memento. Replicas of the Liberty Bell had been hung there by the Boy Scouts of the county, each bell bearing the legend: "Vote as You Think; Think When You Vote. Today's Youth Count on You."

As part of the national program of the Boy Scouts of America to get out the vote in this coming election, Monroe County Scouts early on Saturday morning distributed more than 7,000 bells. Explorer posts and Boy Scout troops covered the outlying areas, while Cub Packs were responsible for their own neighborhoods.

Dutch Treat Will Hear Dr. H. H. Hart

One of America's outstanding authorities on Asiatic and European culture will be guest speaker at a meeting of the Stroudsburg Dutch Treat Club Wednesday, Nov. 5 at 6:30 p. m. in the Penn-Stroud Hotel.

At the dinner meeting, Dr. Claude Leister, club president, will introduce Dr. Henry H. Hart, noted historian, author, linguist and world traveler.

The speaker has made fourteen prolonged trips to the Orient where he remained for long periods in China, Japan, Indo-China, India, Siam and the Malay States. His knowledge of each country is augmented by a scholar's understanding of the literature, language and culture of the people in each region.

In this country, he is well known as a commentator on literary classics, having been heard at many universities, clubs and forums on "Great Writers and Their Books."

Dr. Hart's own first book, "A Chinese Market," his translations of Chinese poetry into English verse, was published in Peking and Pu Yi ("The boy emperor" with whom Hart was well acquainted) wrote the introduction. The book has since become a collector's item.

Also written by Dr. Hart are "The Hundred Names," an introduction to Chinese poetry which is now in its fourth edition; "The West Chamber," an introduction to Chinese drama and "Seven Hundred Chinese Proverbs."

During the war years, Hart was commissioned a major in the Corps of Military Police and taught courses in the Malay language at the Military Government School in Virginia.

In addition to books and translations, Dr. Hart has contributed to numerous magazines and has often appeared on radio and television forums.

Delaware Forestry Area, Still Critically Parched, Is Without Serious Fires

Though a plane criss-crossed the county yesterday and extra men were available at fire spotters and ranger stations, not a blaze was seen anywhere in the dried-out woodlands or brush in the Delaware Forestry District.

It was the second day of the closed "small game season" which would have started Saturday. The season was postponed because of the danger of forest fire in the unusually dry woodlands.

Yesterday, west of Stroudsburg, pheasant a-plenty could be seen along the back roads.

However, there were no sounds of either shotgun or rifle fire. It appeared that county residents were cooperating to keep the woods intact.

District Forester E. C. Pyle said the heavy pall of smoke which had obscured the sky over the entire county in the past few days appeared to be growing worse.

"A few days ago it was lifting at night," he said. "It would get clear then, and we'd send the men up in the fire towers. Sometimes it's easier to spot a glow at night than to see the smoke in the daytime."

Yesterday the smoke had grown so heavy, Pyle said, that it limited vision to about a half a mile from any of the towers. It was the same for the plane which went aloft throughout much of the day, from the Stroudsburg-East Stroudsburg airport: vision was limited to half a mile, making for "dangerous flying," Pyle said.

The low visibility made it necessary for the plane to criss-cross back and forth to cover the county wooded areas properly. But—not a fire was reported.

Thanks From Six

Six Pennsylvanians are thankful today, Mr. Traffic, that they were not among the death toll which you took in this state year from Jan. 1 to Sept. 1.

Of course, several millions of other Pennsylvanians, who think about this traffic problem, are thankful, too; but we are thinking of the six fewer persons who were killed on the state roads and streets, exclusive of the Turnpike, a total of 963. In that period, deaths on the Turnpike were 52 as against 41 in the same months of 1951.

The shameful Turnpike record again points up the fact that the Turnpike Commission must find solutions above the enlarging and tightening of traffic patrols, which should help greatly if applied without letdown. Talk about installation of block systems, and similar improvements is momentarily encouraging; but only action will produce results.

The figures elsewhere in the state reflect that of those killed, 283 men, women and children were struck down while walking in rural areas and city streets. In rural areas, authorities should give immediate consideration to the construction of sidewalks where they know pedestrian traffic is the rule rather than the exception. These walks need not be fancy concrete improvements. In many instances, well-graded, cinder walks would suffice. They probably would save many lives and non-fatal casualties as well as making pedestrian movement a lot more comfortable and secure.

Washington Report

—by Fulton Lewis, Jr.

Chicago—Throughout the campaign Gov. Adlai Stevenson has maintained his headquarters in Springfield, Ill., in an effort to disguise the fact that he is under the thumb of President Truman.

Nobody was fooled very much by the Governor's manly nor has he been particularly successful in concealing the fact that a major segment of his political brain trust resides in New York City and Westport, Conn.

Westport is the home of James and Nancy Wechsler. He is the former member of the Young Communist League, who now edits the New York Post newspaper. This is a beefed up version of the left-wing tabloid, "The Compass." His wife, Nancy, also putters around in left-wing vineyards and says she, too, once marched side by side with her husband down the byways of the Communist conspiracy in America.

One telephone line out of Springfield has been kept busy throughout the campaign. It routes calls from the desk of Arthur Schlesinger, Jr., to the desk of Editor Wechsler or to his wife, Nancy, in Connecticut. Schlesinger is one of Stevenson's ghost writers, noted chiefly for his undying devotion to the left-wing Americans for Democratic action, ADA, under Schlesinger's guidance, proclaims its anti-Communist while endorsing Communist governments everywhere, including the Chinese Reds, who are now shooting at our troops in Korea.

During the month of August, Schlesinger and Wechsler were busy lining up the character assassination of Senator Richard Nixon for accepting contributions from California Republicans. The New York Post, with the aid of Schlesinger, timed the revelations so they would do the most harm politically.

Later on, in September, Schlesinger and the Wechslers were busy again on the telephone, this time lining up Gov. Stevenson's visit to New York state. The Governor, pleased over Wechsler's handiwork in the Nixon case, rewarded the former member of the Young Communist League.

Stevenson allowed Wechsler to ghost one of his New York speeches. And to show you how serious Wechsler and Stevenson are about Communists, it was in this speech that the Presidential nominee of the Democratic party accused Republicans of pursuing Reds in the bureau of wild life and fisheries.

If Stevenson is elected there undoubtedly will be further rewards for the ex-member of the Young Communist League, who likes to make jokes about Communists in the American government.

I've been keeping an eye on the New York Post ever since Wechsler decided to gag up the battle underway with our domestic cousins of the Kremlin. So far I have been unable to detect any editorial mirth over the strange behavior of a Department of Labor economist who was hauled before the Senate Internal Security subcommittee. This is a government department somewhat larger than the Bureau of Wild Life and Fisheries, but it seems to me that what happened was worthy of comment by the New York Post.

On October 23, Harry Ober, a Labor Department economist, was asked if he had ever been in a Communist cell that operated in Washington the same time Alger Hiss was poaching secrets out of the State Department. Ober declined to answer on the grounds of self incrimination, and offered in the way of an alibi that just four hours before taking the witness chair he had resigned his job. When asked why, he again declined to reveal his reasons.

Now Ober is no phantom, and even Gov. Stevenson will have to admit that there must be something wrong with a government employee who quits his job just because he got a subpoena from a Senate committee. And even stranger was his refusal to answer questions about his possible connections with a Red espionage net. After all, a man can always say no if he is clean.

I can't even assume that Stevenson, Wechsler and Schlesinger are sufficiently concerned about the Red issue to admit that maybe there is something to the Communist-in-Government charges. They are still telephoning back and forth, but there hasn't been a single statement or published word from any of the trio about the latest expose. Maybe it didn't surprise them, after all.

St. Petersburg, Md., the birthplace of the "Star Spangled Banner," now is a national shrine.

The state of Minnesota has an Indian name which means "cloudy water."

St. Petersburg was the capital of Russia during the reign of the czars.

Crack Down on Reds

The action of Attorney General James P. McGranery in pressing for the incarceration of top Communists until they can be actually deported from this country makes us even more cognizant of the ever-present dangers of having loose among us those whose sole objective is to overthrow by force and violence the Constitutional government of these United States of America.

It is encouraging, too, to note that the United Nations authority has summarily dismissed one employee and placed others under suspension for their refusal to reply to questions as to their loyalty, properly placed by Sen. Herbert R. O'Connor of Maryland, in his capacity as chairman of a sub-committee of the United States Senate.

The American pattern, as developed, seems to be for Congressional investigators to unearth the Reds, and then for the Justice Department to start the wheels turning to place the Communists behind bars and or to get them out of this country.

More likely than not, there are more Communists in America today who are native born citizens than there are otherwise — and we line up with the Communists the parlor pinks and the fellow travelers.

Our security agencies most certainly are keeping tabs on all of them; but for the most part, their work must be kept confidential to be most effective.

Obviously then, we hear primarily of those cases which are brought to light by our probing agencies—and they become the most spectacular. But we must not be unmindful of the constant efforts of the security agencies, the FBI and the others, which are plugging day and night toward the same objectives.

The Broadway Show

The knocks were cushioned with approval for the sets, songs or stars. Most reviewers were more impressed with the arpeggio magic of Dorothy Sarnoff and Elaine Malbin than the show . . . In Hollywood they are going to start production on a picture to be called "Dream Wife."

It will be the story of a man who becomes engaged to an Oriental princess, believing that she will be a "dream wife." To make the thing more authentic, MGM studio has hired a noted psychologist as technical adviser, and this fellow is supposed to supervise all the psychological phases of the production.

When asked what the average man considers a "dream wife," the psychologist said:

Government by Choice. In very few countries is it still possible for the people to elect their own governments. In Russia, for instance, the government is chosen by the Politburo (now Presidium) of the Communist Party, and the Politburo or Presidium is appointed by Stalin. Their form of government is technically an oligarchy with no power for the people. In China, the government seized power by revolution. In France and other continental parliamentary countries, the government is formed by coalitions of splinter parties, the will of people expressing itself indirectly.

In the United States, on Tuesday, the people will vote for the party in power or against the party in power. Even so, there is an element of indirectness in that the final decision is in the electoral college. It is possible that a candidate may have a majority of the popular vote but not a majority of the electoral college vote. In that case, the electoral vote will prevail.

The people this year vote not only for a President and Vice-President, but also for the entire House of Representatives and about one-third of the Senate. The selection of members of Congress, Representatives and Senators, is of equal importance with the election of the President. That is often overlooked in the ballyhoo of the campaign, but the fact is that the Constitution gives to Congress the basic powers of government and therefore every member of that body is a significant personage in the American scheme of things.

Many Americans were uncertain as to how they would vote this year until Harry Truman barged into the campaign. Adlai Stevenson's first impulse to separate himself from Truman may prove to have been correct. For there can be no doubt that Truman made votes for Eisenhower. What he attacked was not Eisenhower the Republican or Eisenhower the politician. He attacked Eisenhower the man. He attacked the integrity of one of our military figures and public servants whom he, Truman, had not only elevated but to whom he had offered the Democratic nomination for the Presidency.

The lack of logic in Truman's position must have been clear to him because he debated the campaign by a resort to vituperation, smear and vindictive hate not witnessed in recent years. Many who were uncertain as between Stevenson and Eisenhower were not at all doubtful about Truman. They wanted him and his cronies out of office.

The result is that during the last fortnight of the campaign, it reduced itself to a conflict between Truman and Eisenhower, which it ought not to have been. Even should Stevenson be elected, his career as President will bear the scars of Trumanism.

For the voter there is another consideration which has generally been disregarded during the campaign: the Republican Party has achieved unity with one exception, Senator Wayne Morse.

Should General Eisenhower be elected, it will be possible for him to work with his party in Congress, Senator Robert A. Taft, the leader in the Senate, and Representative Joe Martin, the leader in the House, having supported him wholeheartedly. He will also have the benefit of the support of those Democrats in Congress who have been opposed to Truman. Therefore, he will have a working majority in Congress. A President at odds with Congress always finds himself in an untenable position.

On this subject, I refer you to Volume III of Herbert Hoover's biography which shows clearly what happens to a President who does not have a working majority in Congress. Not only is he stymied; the country is thrown into chaos.

Governor Stevenson has not succeeded in unifying his party. In many of the Southern and Southwestern states the opposition to him is so pronounced that he would start with a minority in Congress, although his party might have a numerical majority. Should the Democrats organize the Senate, the principal chairmanships would go to Democrats who are anti-Truman and who would continue to be suspicious of Stevenson, at any rate, for some time.

Harry Truman's Administration has largely been messed up because he has been at odds with Congress, not only the 80th Congress, but the 79th, the 81st and the 82nd. Most of the exposures of the weakness of the Truman Administration, the corruption, the subversion, the neglect have been the achievements of Democratic chairman. In Congress, his own party has not stood by him, passing important legislation over his veto. This atmosphere bodes no good for the country.

Try And Stop Me

—by Bennet Cerf

From Atlanta, via Charles Warehouse's Mail Agency, comes a delectable new sluggy dog story. Seems an old prospector was reminiscing for some eastern tenderloins. "There I was," he asserted, "trapped in a narrow canyon, with a big grizzly 20 yards away behind a tree. Only way I could hit the critter was to ricochet a bullet off the high canyon wall on my right.

"Well, I'm a champion shot, as you probably know. I just gauged my windage, calculated the lead of the barrel and of the bullet and the angle of yaw. It would have after being smacked out of shape against the canyon wall, and I judged my chances of nailing that bear were about 80-20. A one-rail bank shot. A controlled ricochet. So I took aim and fired."

The prospector paused. One of the tenderloins asked softly, "Did you hit him?" "Nops," answered the old man. "I missed the wall."

Hollywood

Hollywood—"The Prisoner of Zenda" presents not one but two Stewart Grangers swashbuckling through mythical Ruritania, where uniforms are dazzling, heroines pure, and villains despicable. If costume-adventure is your dish, you'll like this one.

It's the third time around on the screen for the Anthony Hope novel of royal intrigue, and an interesting sidelight is this: Lewis Stone, who starred in the original version in 1922, now plays a bit role as a cardinal. The second edition, in 1937, featured Ronald Colman.

In the present offering, Granger is a wealthy Englishman vacationing in the Balkans. He bears a startling resemblance to Ruritania's King Rudolf V—naturally enough, since it is only a slightly altered Granger in both roles.

Well, this resemblance is most opportune for the king's aide, Louis Calhern. For villains Robert Douglas (the king's half-brother, who seeks the throne) and James Mason drug and kidnap the king the night before his scheduled coronation. And Calhern persuades the Englishman Granger to stand in for the missing king at the ceremonies.

The phony king, pressed into extending the hoax, falls in love with Princess Deborah Kerr. He swims the moat, storms the castle, and duels Mason to free the

The Once Over

—by H. I. Phillips

The Real News Newsreel

Frank Walsh, the New York man who fired a gun into his TV set a week ago, appeared on a jacked-up program, won and got (of all things) a new video set . . . But no range finder . . . "My Darling Aida," a switch with Verdi from the Nils to the Mississippi, is a sort of blending of "Gone With the Wind" and "Stuck With the Opera" . . . But it has beauty and top music and is an expensive production they had to get a special set of angles to pay for the chandeliers alone . . . Tallulah Bankhead posed with Adlai Stevenson for pictures . . . Tallulah could help Adlai a lot by giving him her foreign policy . . . Nishinsky threw a dinner for U.N. delegates from India, Iran, Burma, Pakistan and Indonesia the other night . . . We trust that when the food was passed nobody voted an abstention . . . And we assume that if any guest, overlooked, completely in the main course, called attention to the oversight, he didn't get the imprisoned ruler. The handsomely Technicolor film includes some remarkable "split screen" photography. It enables the two Grangers to talk and shake hands. One neat and secret trick even permits one Granger to walk around behind the other and pat him on the arm . . . Can a woman live down an unsavory past to find happiness with the man she loves? Can a husband forgive and forget? Tune in—that is, go see Loretta Young and Jeff Chandler in "Because of You" for a sudsy answer.

Loretta, a parolee, has served a prison term for smuggling narcotics with her old boy friend, Alex Nicol. Now she's a nurse's aide in a GI hospital. She and handsome Maj. Chandler fall in love. Should she tell him of her past? Yes, says her parole officer; but Loretta just can't.

She and Jeff marry. There's a child. Nicol intrudes upon her life and tricks her into abetting another crime. Jeff finds out all. Lips trembling bitterly, he turns her out. Their daughter is happy only with her, but Jeff has custody. The outcome is inevitable, but the acting is good.

WHAT'S HE DOING? Indolent Ignatz has come to expect so much aid and guidance that he says he won't vote unless the government sends a cab, stands in line for him at the polls, gives him crackerjack when he pulls the lever, saves him for lost time and serves him a hot lunch as he leaves. . . People who live on fixed incomes are going to look for a voting-machine lever marked "For artificial respiration swing this lever to the right." . . . Bill Cane's top money-winning pacer "Good Time" was honored guest in the Yonkers clubhouse this week, entering on a redcarpeted runway and getting a big meal . . . This is perhaps the first time a horse ever said, "I'm so hungry I could eat a MAN."

Full Line Of Farmer Needs Is Carried

Van D. Yetter Jr., Monroe County's farm implement dealer for the past 20 years, offers the farmers and business of this area the reliable Caterpillar Tractors and Diesel engines.

Caterpillar is built for "Comfortable Operation". The roomy seat of a "Caterpillar" Diesel Tractor is provided with a comfortable soil spring, hair-padded cushion. Soft, padded back and side cushions keep the operator comfortable no matter how long the day. Visibility is good and easy working controls are within convenient reach for increased operating efficiency. Only from this comfortable, deep cushion seat can you appreciate all the advantages of "Caterpillar" Diesel power. A light pull on a handy lever transfers engine power to the outside track for full power turns. And releasing both clutches at the same time stops the tractor while power continues on the power take-off shaft—a helpful feature when using power take-off driven equipment.

Slow speed, multiple disk steering clutches are designed to provide long trouble-free service with minimum upkeep. Accurate steering pays off in orchards by eliminating tree damage and minimizing costly hand labor. Gentle or sharp pivot turns are made with equal ease when "Caterpillar" tracktype power is on the job.

Why not see Van D. Yetter today, your Monroe County Farm Implement dealer. Van will be glad to discuss with you the trade-in on your old tractor, and the financing of your new one.

While there, why not look over the complete line of farm implements handled by Van D. Yetter. They include Case Tractors, and Field Forage Harvesters, Ferguson Tractors, New Holland Farm Machinery, New Idea Equipment and Pape Farming machines . . .

See them all today at Van D. Yetter's Showrooms, along route 402 near Marshalls Creek, Pa., or phone Stroudsburg 2832 for an "On Your Farm Demonstration".

THIS JUST GOES TO SHOW you the wonders you can work with sparkling white-enameled steel Geneva cabinets, stainless steel Geneva Sink, and work-saving Geneva kitchen accessories! Almost magically you end kitchen clutter . . . and end up with a gorgeous, wonderfully efficient arrangement that cuts cross-kitchen traffic to almost nothing. See how your kitchen can be magically transformed with Geneva units. Our special planning service can show you without any cost or obligation . . . Stop in or call Wyckoff's, Electric shop today . . . Phone 400.

Edinger-Wyckoff Supply Fine Wall Panel Woodwork

Edinger-Wyckoff, specialists in fine wood and wood cabinetry, features "Plankweld", the wood paneled room that comes in a package . . .

Now you can have beautiful new walls and you can install it yourself.

How often have you wished you were handy enough to install beautiful Weldwood Plywood panels in at least one room in your house? Now you can—with Plankweld! This newest Weldwood paneling has been developed especially for you although, of course, experienced woodworkers and carpenters have also taken advantage of this new, easy way to Weldwood-panel a room.

Plankweld is pre-finished Weldwood Plywood, cut to the right width for stud spacing. The grooved edges fit into each other to form a continuous wall. If you can saw a board and drive a nail you can install Plankweld!

It doesn't matter whether you plan to put the panels over old, battered walls or over bare studs, a Plankweld wall is bound to be good—structurally and decoratively.

Your Plankweld panels are delivered to you all ready to install, packed in bundles of ten panels 16 1/2 inches wide, 1 inch thick, up to 96 inches long. Metal clips for fastening, and complete installation instructions are included.

Hazelwood—the economy Plankweld panel—is the newest type of Plankweld. Its uniformly light toned faces form a wonderful "blond" background for modern interiors. See it, and see the other Plankwelds, too—birch, oak and Philippine mahogany—all beautifully pre-finished.

Plankweld is repair-free. It lasts a lifetime and practically takes care of itself. There's no maintenance expense with Plankweld.

Drive out to the Edinger-Wyckoff Plant today, and see their displays of fine woods that can be used in any room of your home . . . The Edinger-Wyckoff plant is conveniently located just off N. 5th Street, at 1410 Spruce Street (Turn in at John Price Food Market) in Stroudsburg. Contractors are urged to investigate the advantage of ordering your wood needs through Edinger-Wyckoff, or phone 3286 now . . .

Strunk Chain Saw Handled By J. H. Andre

Joseph H. Andre, Monroe County's garden and farm implement dealer, now handles the big name in Chain Saws . . . "STRUNK", a practicable lightweight one-man 19 inch blade Chain Saw.

This is the ideal saw for easy one-man operation, for felling trees for cutting logs fire-wood or what have you. One of the big advantages of the "Strunk" saw is that it cuts 1/2 inch above ground level in felling position . . . thus leaving no ugly stumps, and assuring you more wood and longer logs.

The "Strunk" has an easy starting 2-cycle gasoline engine, no excessive pressure is required for bucking. The Strunk walks thru the cut . . . its own weight supplies sufficient pressure for the job. Sturdy cast aluminum alloy throughout insures ruggedness and light weight. Best of all the price is only $289.

See Joseph H. Andre today and get an actual demonstration of this extra fine Chain Saw . . . Mr. Andre's showroom is located near the radio tower in Stroudsburg, or phone 2047-J-1 for a demonstration at your home . . .

Pocono Union Church Story Is Outlined

Paradise—At a recent homecoming service for the Pocono Union Church, Rev. C. F. Spangenberg, pastor of the church, outlined the basic history of the church in its present area.

Rev. Spangenberg said the origin of Protestant worship at the Meiertown Crossroads had not been established, pointing out that it is believed that the crossroad section did not exist until after the establishment of Protestant worship.

"We do know," he said, "that worship began before Monroe County was established in 1836 from parts of Northampton and Pike counties." In those early days, he continued, the population (there) was largely of German descent. Now, the pastor said, there are very few German-speaking people.

The roots of the Pocono Union Church were formed in a "common-meetinghouse" which was used for both religious and secular activities, Rev. Spangenberg said.

It was not until 1840 that the Christians worshipping in the area assumed a name, he continued. When they did so, the pastor said, they called themselves "The Union Church of Pocono."

Trustees of the early church included John Miller, John D. Frailey and Charles Hays, the pastor said.

Rev. Spangenberg then traced an outline of those persons responsible for the contribution of land to the early church.

The present church building was erected in 1863. At present both the Pocono Union Church and the Keokee Chapel comprise what is known as the Paradise Circuit or Charge.

Camera Club Will Meet

Pocono Camera Club members will hold their first "color slide" contest of the year at a meeting Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the East Stroudsburg Junior High School building.

Officials of the club expect competition to be heavy with many examples of good color photography on display.

Increasing interest in the use of color has been shown by the members this year.

Interested visitors who attend the meeting will hear explanations of the techniques used in color photography.

THUNDERING WATERS

WHEN THE IROQUOIS INDIANS first came out of the forests and saw the great cataracts of Niagara, they called the Falls the "Thunderer of the Waters." Today, more than two million visitors annually make a trip to Niagara Falls to see the same changing beauty and grandeur that fascinated those early Indians. The majestic grace of the American Falls combines with the massive ruggedness of the Canadian Horseshoe Falls to form one of nature's finest show places. In spring and summer the Falls are surrounded by luxuriant foliage. In winter, spray from the Falls freezes on bushes and trees and an ice bridge forms across the river below during extremely cold periods. The American Falls (on the left in the panoramic view above) is 167 feet high and tops the Horseshoe by five feet. The latter (on the right), however, is 2,600 feet wide compared to only 1,000 for the American Falls. One of the most spectacular parts of a trip to the Falls is the Great Whirlpool basin, where the savage waters of the Niagara river sweep in on their journey to the sea. The Whirlpool is estimated to be 150 feet deep and was formed during the glacial period when the course of the river was changed by that great movement. Swinging high above the basin is the Spanish aero car, an aerial tramway that gives visitors a view of the circling waters. The aero car, one of the longest passenger-carrying cable railways in the world, carries 40 passengers 150 feet in the air across the Whirlpool, where the waters churn through the gorge at a speed of 27 knots an hour, forming a sight that few travelers, who have seen it, ever forget.

Fellow Monroe Countians:

You have, perhaps, noticed the advertisement in the Stroudsburg Daily Record of October 30th, which was placed there by the Democratic County Chairman.

First, let me say to you that I appreciate fully the element of doubt which has been raised in your mind relative to the State Income Tax which was prosed and disposed of last year. I sympathize deeply because you have been the victims of misrepresentation of facts. I want to impress upon you that the number of telegrams and letters received from constituents were very evenly divided, regardless of the statements of the local paper to the contrary. Allow me to ask you one question: "Do you think that any representative wishes to vote for a tax?" I can assure you they DO NOT!

Secondly, let me tell you that the debts the 1951 Legislature faced were not created by me, except that I was in favor of giving the service men of Pennsylvania a bonus . . . and on that point I am definitely willing to pay my share. It is certain that we cannot cut down taxes unless we cut down expenses. Therefore, I am for ECONOMY in ALL government, and it is my pledge to fight AGAINST UNFAIR TAXES and promote efficiency in government.

That the state income tax is not an issue of the present campaign is attested by the following telegram from Governor Fine recently received by me:

Hon. John Shotwell
Effort, Pa.

Have repeatedly stated I will not propose income tax to next legislature. Any new tax—if any—will be for legislature to propose and pass.

John S. Fine, Governor

I am asking your support for re-election, I promise to work, as always FOR THE COUNTY'S BEST INTEREST.

Methodists Celebrate Anniversary

Stroudsburg Methodists yesterday began a full week of celebration marking the 164th anniversary of their borough church with a large attendance at both Sunday School and regular worship services.

The Youth and Senior choirs of the church joined in singing special anthems in the anniversary services.

Floral offerings from the family of the late H. Layton Teeter served as decoration for the church meeting room.

Rev. Roger C. Stimson, pastor of the church, chose as the anniversary theme of the church and the central theme of his morning sermon "A Long Look At Life", based on the portion of the Holy Writ from Chapter Five of Jeremiah in which God told the prophet to "go to and fro through the streets of Jerusalem . . . seek in the broad places . . . find a man . . . that seeketh the truth . . ."

Rev. Stimson reviewed the collapse of nations through immorality and by the failure to observe the divine right of judgment and equity.

He spoke of the laxity of right-doing in our country in high places today. He admonished his hearers, as good citizens, to be sure and vote on Tuesday and in accordance with their good conscience.

The anniversary observance will continue during this week. Wednesday at 6:30 p. m. an anniversary dinner will be held at the church.

DPA Collects Former Grants From Estates

During the first nine months of 1952 the State Department of Public Assistance collected $2,329,860 in reimbursements from former assistance recipients or their estates for assistance granted them in times of need.

Reimbursement is the repayment of assistance granted to a person while he has ownership or the right to ownership of property.

Such property is liable for reimbursement if it is not immediately convertible into cash to be used for current expenses or is providing a necessary living requirement.

If a person applying for assistance has resources which, for good reason, cannot be readily converted into cash for current expenses, the Department requires that the applicant sign a proper acknowledgment of liability before being considered eligible for assistance from the State.

Cold is the absence of heat and at 460 degrees below zero Fahrenheit it is impossible to get any colder.

"They never had it so good!"

THE order is, "Forward march"—and off they go, feet sucking against the Korean mud, every bone crying, "I'm tired!"

The order is flop and eat — and they flop and try to eat, no matter how little they like the food.

The order is, "Take hill number 63!"—and they fight forward, not ready for death, but expecting it with every splatter of bullets.

Then, in the quiet moments, one soldier will turn to another and half grin and say, "You never had it so good."

A joke—a classic Army joke—but these days it has a real bitter note to it. Because at the same time everyone is wondering and saying:

"Did it have to come to this?"

"Couldn't the shooting have been stopped before it began?"

"What's the matter with our foreign policy?"

"Why didn't the Administration see this coming?"

"Must we keep paying for their mistakes?"

"WHAT? We've never had it so good? COME INTO MY FOXHOLE AND SAY THAT!"

All right—the damage is done—and we all know what has been badly begun must be well ended.

BUT — shall we forget or forgive those who blundered? Will you? Do you DARE? Will you trust America's future foreign policy to those responsible for Korea? Is this official fumbling what you want for America? You know it isn't!

Not if you value the lives of your sons. Not if you value your own life and welfare and that of your family. Not if you value the peace and prosperity of America.

No — you will want to clean house. You will want to sweep out of power and into the ash can the Administration that brought your country to this. You will run, not walk, to the polls. You will vote eagerly, glad that you can make a change. You will

Kathleen Ann Hammond Is Bride Of Lt. A. C. Woodard

St. John's Evangelical Lutheran Church was the scene of a pretty fall wedding yesterday afternoon when Miss Kathleen Ann Hammond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Hammond, of 827 Monroe St., became the bride of Lt. Arthur Clair Woodard, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Woodard, of Youngsville, Pa.

The impressive double ring ceremony was performed at 2:30 p.m. by Rev. Dr. P. N. Wohlson, pastor, in the presence of many relatives and friends. The altar was decorated with baskets of white mums flanked by potted palms.

Suitable nuptial music was furnished by Ernest Michelfelder, Miss Christine Teeley was the soloist and was heard in the numbers, "Because" and "I Love You Truly."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gossamer candlelight chantilly lace nylon tulle gown. The tight fitting bodice ended in a chantilly lace peplum. The billowing nylon tulle skirt over many under-skirts led into a circular train of lace. The jacket of chantilly lace had long pointed sleeves with covered buttons. Her fingertip veil was attached to a cloche hat of lace covered with seed pearls. The bride's colonial bouquet was made of white roses and white mums.

The bridesmaids, Miss Marie Root, of Ephrata, also a college classmate of the bride, and Miss Louise Meloney, of Mount Pocono, wore matching floor length gowns of shrimp colored nylon net with off the shoulder bodices. They carried matching colonial bouquets of light bronze and white mums with backing of light blue moline.

The mother of the bride wore a navy blue faille dress with hat and gloves of winter white and corsage of white roses.

The bridegroom's mother chose a dark brown suit with matching accessories and also a corsage of white roses.

Harry Ankney, of Johnstown, fraternity brother of the groom, was best man. The ushers were Donald Anderson, also a fraternity brother of the bridegroom, and Richard C. Hammond, of Stroudsburg, brother of the bride.

A reception followed the wedding at Gap View Inn with tables decorated with white flowers and candles.

The newlyweds left later on a trip through the Shenandoah Valley, Virginia. For traveling the bride chose a grey flannel suit with winter white hat and gloves and a corsage of white roses. They will make their home at 211 Lynwood St., Alexandria, Va.

The bride was graduated from Pennsylvania State College with major in biological sciences and is now employed in the Defense Department, Washington, D. C.

The bridegroom is also a graduate of Pennsylvania State College and is now in the Army Engineer Corps, stationed at Fort Belvoir, Va.

Pocono Mts. Rep. Women Given Flag

Swiftwater — The regular monthly meeting of the Pocono Mountains Council, Women's Republican Club was held Thursday evening at Swiftwater.

The meeting opened with the presentation of an American flag to the council, the gift of John S. Shotwell, candidate for Representative in the General Assembly. After the salute to the flag and singing of the National Anthem, it was voted to send a letter of thanks to Mr. Shotwell, who was unable to be present.

The business meeting, presided over by Mrs. George Humphrey, president, opened with the reading of the minutes by Mrs. Bessie Ingersoll, secretary. Plans were made to send a generous donation to the State Headquarters of the Republican Women at Harrisburg, for the new clubhouse recently purchased.

The Social Welfare Committee will sponsor a Girl Scout Group as their activity of the year.

An excellent attendance of regular members was in evidence and gifts were presented to the new members introduced at the September meeting.

At the close of the business meeting, Harry Taylor, chief clerk in the office of the County Commissioners at Stroudsburg, lucidly explained the simplicity and ease of operating the voting machines which are gradually being introduced into the county.

B. K. Williams, Chairman Monroe County Republican Committee, guest speaker, discussed the vital issues of our time and urged everyone to vote in the coming election.

Mrs. Florence Wendley and her Social Committee served refreshments.

The next meeting of the council will be held Tuesday evening, Nov. 18, at the home of Mrs. George Humphrey, at Mount Pocono.

Former Class Members Honor 1917 Teacher

Ten of the 13 original members of Mrs. Howard R. Flagler Sr.'s class of Stroudsburg Methodist Sunday School, visited their teacher yesterday morning and also accompanied her to church services.

Mrs. Flagler originally took over the class of boys in 1910. It broke up in 1917 when they entered the services of the armed forces in World War I. Mrs. Flagler then took over a class of girls and has continued as their teacher. Fortunately all the boys returned after the war.

The meeting yesterday was the second reunion of the boys, the first having taken place 16 years ago. The visitors presented their former teacher with a copy of the new version of the Holy Bible.

Hallowe'en At Beakleyville Sunday School

The annual Hallowe'en party of the Beakleyville Baptist Church was held at the church last Wednesday night. There were suitable decorations with orange and black colors predominating.

Winners of the games were Donnie and Mary Shamp. There were also prizes for costumes, the pastor, Rev. Elias Jones, and Dr. T. Edward Terrill acted as the judges.

The winners were: Funniest adult, Mrs. Grace Posten, cowboy; funniest child, Ann Stettler, witch; prettiest, Carolyn Bitterman, Chinese girl; best disguise, Marjorie Bitterman, mechanical man; most original, Nancy Bitterman, wolf girl.

Refreshments of doughnuts and orange soda were served during the night.

Mrs. Leister To Address WSCS

The Stroudsburg Methodist Woman's Society of Christian Service will meet tonight at the church when Mrs. Claude Leister is to be the guest speaker on "Christian Women's Responsibility in Politics and Government".

Mrs. Leister has recently been appointed state chairman of the American Association of University Women. Before that time, she served as chairman of the International Relations Study Group of the local AAUW.

Richard W. Bachman Takes Miss VanBuskirk As Bride

Saylorsburg — Miss L. Joyce VanBuskirk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy J. VanBuskirk, Saylorsburg, and Richard W. Bachman, son of Mrs. Cora Arnold, of Mt. Bethel, were wedded at the Hamilton Evangelical Reformed Church Saturday at 8 p.m.

The double ring candlelight ceremony was performed by Rev. Adan A. Bohner. The church was decorated with multi-colored pom poms and candles. Mrs. Jacob Hartman, church organist, played appropriate wedding music previous to the ceremony. Dennis Harris, of Wind Gap, vocal soloist sang "I Love You Truly," "O Promise Me" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Walter Hoover, of Emmaus. She wore a gown of white nylon tulle and chantilly lace over satin buttoned down the back with scalloped neckline and panel of nylon tulle in front of bouffant skirt. Her fingertip veil fell from a Juliet cap of lace and nylon net. She carried a bouquet of white mums with streamers of pom poms.

Miss Jeanne Leshar, of Nazareth, friend of the bride, maid-of-honor, wore a peacock blue gown of lace and nylon over taffeta of lace and nylon net in hair and lace mitts. Her colonial bouquet was composed of white pom poms.

The bridesmaids, Miss Anna Mae VanBuskirk, of Saylorsburg, and Mrs. Betty Tieweeks, of Bangor, sisters of the bride, wore shrimp colored gowns of lace and nylon over taffeta with lace bolero jackets and mitts, also head bands of lace and nylon net in their hair.

Gilmore Honey, of Pen Argyl, was best man. George Stenlake, of East Bangor, and Nelson Lugg, of Bangor, cousins of the newlyweds, acted as ushers. They were attired in tuxedos and pom pom boutonnieres.

The mother of the bride was attired in a blue satin dress with black accessories. The bridegroom's mother selected a navy blue suit, with black accessories. They both wore corsages of red roses.

The flower girl, little Karen Jean Rowe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Rowe, of East Bangor, cousin of the bride, wore a satin gown trimmed in lace and matching hat and carried a bouquet of white pom poms.

Little Robert Locke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Locke, of Stroudsburg, friend of the bride, was ring bearer.

The reception was held at the fire hall, this place, with decorations of crepe paper and pom poms. The bride's table was centered with a large three-tiered wedding cake with smaller ones on each side. The color scheme was peacock blue and shrimp on white base and white pom pong.

Mr. and Mrs. Bachman left later on a wedding trip of two weeks' duration to Florida. The bride was attired in a blue street dress and corsage of red roses. On their return they will make their home at West Pen Argyl.

The bridegroom attended the Pen Argyl schools and is employed at the Blue Ridge Textile plant, Bangor.

Two Bushkill Residents Are Wedded

Bushkill — Miss Josephine Boyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond S. Boyer, of Bushkill, became the bride of Carl H. VanWhy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence J. VanWhy, also of Bushkill, on Saturday at 2:30 p.m. at the parsonage of the Bushkill Dutch Reformed church.

Rev. John H. Lackey performed the double ring ceremony in front of the fireplace in the presence of the immediate families.

The bride wore a Royal blue taffeta street length dress with navy blue accessories and a corsage of red roses.

Mrs. Robert Ivan Michaels was maid-of-honor and wore a red double-faille street length dress with black accessories and a corsage of white roses.

Robert Ivan Michaels served as best man.

The bride's mother wore a navy blue nylon suit dress with blue and white accessories and a corsage of white roses. The bridegroom's mother wore a navy blue pebble cloth suit with blue accessories and a corsage of red roses.

A wedding reception was held at Shaffer's Inn, Milford Rd. at 4 p.m. for 175 guests. Relatives and friends from Bangor, Pen Argyl, Easton, and Williamsport were in attendance.

The bridal table was centered under an archway of white and trimmed with red roses. A five-tiered wedding cake with a miniature bride and bridegroom adorned the wedding table.

The bride and bridegroom are both graduates of the East Stroudsburg High School. The bridegroom is presently employed by Peter W. Karo, contractor, but will leave shortly for service with the armed forces.

After a wedding trip of undetermined destination the couple will make their home with the bride's parents.

Around The Stroudsburgs

Lt. Col. Paul Feller, home on a week's leave, took his wife and daughter, Cynthia, and son, Paul, up to West Point for the weekend where they attended the Army-VMI game and had dinner at the Hotel Thayer.

Mrs. Frank Pote returned to her home at Paulsboro, N.J., after a visit with her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Bennett Strait, Delaware Water Gap. Mr. and Mrs. William Lobecker and children, of Fallsington, Pa., were weekend visitors of the Straits.

Mrs. Rocco English and daughter, Karen Marie and Miss Joan Papson, of Forty Fort, were Sunday visitors of their grandmother, Mrs. Catherine Mosteller, W. Main St. Miss Papson is a freshman at Misericordia College, in Wilkes-Barre.

Somehow the class never got together again. Mrs. Flagler became the teacher of a girls' group, and except for an occasional reunion the boys went various ways.

Memory is a tie that binds, however. So yesterday the class met once again. The freshly scrubbed, Sunday-best students weren't quite so young as they had been, but their faces were just as bright, and so were their smiles, as they answered the roll call, and listened to their teacher. Her lesson was probably pretty much the same too. For all the water under the bridge ... for all the treaties and broken promises ... for all the secret weapons and flying saucers, the world is the same place, and the rules of Christian living are unchanged.

I can feel ... can't you? ... some of the things that passed through the heads of teacher and pupil yesterday. I can also recognize in that reunion an argument for parents indifferent to the religious training of their young. Into my mind leaps one question: Could any relationship be so lasting and gratifying if it were not based on that which is all-good? I doubt it. Every young person should have such associations.

I know this story because I walked into our advertising department Saturday and watched Arthur Widmer carefully inscribe "Presented to Mrs. Flagler by Her Boys" onto the fly leaf of a Bible. As one of those boys, he told me the plans. The gift was a modernized version of the Scripture—the most wonderful story ever told, truer than true, older than old, but as modern as tomorrow. A very appropriate gift, all things considered.

Tamiment To Present Book Award

The Tamiment Institute, founder of Camp Tamiment, will present its third annual book award on Saturday, Nov. 22 at the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria, New York.

Although the Tamiment award is usually given to only one author per year, the Institute this year has voted to confer awards on two American authors.

The first of the awards will be given to Merlo J. Pusey for his "Charles Evans Hughes," a biography of the Supreme Court Justice which won the Pulitzer Prize this year in that category.

"Witness," an autobiographical work by Whitaker Chambers, is the second major book to receive this year's award.

The awards will be presented in the Sert Room of the Waldorf-Astoria on Nov. 22 before a distinguished group of editors and authors.

Purpose of the awards is an attempt to focus attention upon the achievements of outstanding individuals who exemplify the virtues of the free way of life.

Rehabilitation Bureau Finds Speech Defects Major Problem In Territory

State Bureau of Rehabilitation reported today that more than 4 per cent of the disabled persons it served during the past year were afflicted with speech defects, including cleft palate.

Mark M. Walter, Director of the State Bureau of Rehabilitation, said 142 speech defect and cleft palate cases or 4.1 per cent of the total Commonwealth citizens given rehabilitative services during the past 12 months, were provided with proper medical services, guidance or placement counseling, so they could accept gainful employment and become self-sufficient citizens.

Tom E. Williams, manager of the bureau's Wilkes-Barre District, said 50 speech defect and cleft palate cases were from the local area which comprises Bradford, Columbia, Lackawanna, Luzerne, Monroe, Pike, Sullivan, Susquehanna, Wayne, Montour and Wyoming counties.

"While we have experienced some success in rehabilitating these cases we do not want to arouse the hopes of citizens afflicted with speech defects or cleft palate, particularly stuttering cases because many are extremely difficult to rehabilitate," said Williams. "The Bureau's program calls for a careful examination by a medical specialist before a person with a speech defect or cleft palate is accepted for retraining. This same procedure is followed in all of our rehabilitation cases because it is necessary in our program of retraining, preparing, and placing these persons in gainful employment."

"While the Bureau purchases its medical services for persons with these afflictions from existing facilities within the State, speech training also could be included in an overall rehabilitation center if one were to be established in Pennsylvania. Speech training from the center would be provided only to severely disabled cases confined there, who might require this service, because it would not be the plan to have a comprehensive rehabilitation center duplicate services now available in Pennsylvania."

"Unfortunately the Commonwealth now is without an overall rehabilitation center and must spend thousands and thousands of dollars annually to send handicapped persons to other states which have rehabilitation centers. If a center of this type were established in the Commonwealth a

Mrs. Edna E. Bonser - Ph. Poc. Lk. 11-R-12

On Friday night Wilson Bonser and family, Martha and Wilson, were guests of his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bonser, at a wild goose supper.

Tuesday of last week Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gibbons attended the funeral of Mr. Gibbons' father at Philadelphia.

Last week end Mr. and Mrs. Harley Hennings were weekend guests of the latter's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Shupp, of Pittsburgh.

James Sudden and Austin Kresge celebrated their birthdays last week.

Mrs. Jennie Kilmore is on the sick list.

James Sudden, while doing carpenter work for Tom Smith on a new home, suffered a painful injury when he was caught by the pants leg in one of the saws. While trying to keep his leg from getting seriously injured, he hurt his right arm.

High School Vote Favors Eisenhower

Tannersville—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower continued his sweep of the high school vote last week when he won an election at Pocono Township High School by a vote of 101 to 48 votes for his Democratic rival Adlai Stevenson.

In a "general election" for all students from seventh through the senior grades, the school also went on record as overwhelmingly in favor of installation of voting machines in their "district" (the school).

Small-scale ballots—replicas of actual ballots which will be used in the regular election Tuesday—were used by the students.

Polling-places were set up on the school's assembly stage. Members of the senior class, under the advisement of Richard DeHaven, took turns acting as election officials.

When the final votes were tallied the election had settled the following "issues":

For President of the United States: Eisenhower—101; Stevenson—48; Stuart Hamblen—(Western singer who was converted by evangelist Billy Graham and is now the national candidate of the Prohibition Party)—2 votes.

(The students also gave one write-in vote to Kefauver and one ballot was marked incorrectly.)

In favor of installation of voting machines—120; opposed to machines—14.

So That Every Red-Blooded American Knows What The McCarran-Walter Act Really Does:

By CONGRESSMAN FRANCIS WALTER

It puts together in one law the many separate immigration laws passed in the last 50 years, eliminating contradictions and filling in gaps.

It removes the ban on Orientals, a big factor in building up hate against America in pre-World War II Japan.

It liberalizes the bringing in of wives, husbands, children and parents of American citizens.

FRANCIS E. WALTER

HITS AT REDS

It includes the provisions of the 1950 Internal Security Act, passed at the request of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Immigration Service to make it more difficult for known subversives to enter the U.S. and to simplify deportation of those already here.

It preserves the "national origins" formula of the 1924 Immigration Act, which set quotas for immigrants from each European country on the basis of one-sixth of one per cent of that country's descendants living in the U.S. in 1920.

FAVORS "SPECIALISTS"

Finally, to attract the most useful types of immigrants, the new law allows the first half of each country's quota to be reserved for "specialists"—teachers, professional men, artists, scientists, etc.

The attack on the immigration bill has been against only two of its provisions.

The anti-subversive clauses have been called unnecessary, unwise and too strict.

BEGINS TO OPERATE DEC. 21

Preservation of the "national origins" formula has been called "false to American ideals." None of the opponents advocated repealing the formula—since the old law was the most generous immigration policy in the Western Hemisphere or in Europe.

Incidentally, the law doesn't start operating until Dec. 24. Regulations spelling out how it is to be applied still have to be written.

By Cal Counterman

Honors of the past week turned to a family affair with a man and his wife sharing the laurels, Wednesday night in the "B" league saw Herb Bonser hit on games of 216-211-203 for the total of 630. Then came Thursday night and the Stroud Ladies' League. They called on Marie Bonser to substitute and she started slow to improve in each game as she hit 145-183-244 for the 572, which along with her 244 is high now for the ladies.

It was the Navy on Monday night at the Legion, when they posted the high team single of 894. This enabled them to win their point by 197 pins as the Army hit for 697. This score gives them the high so far this year as the league is still looking for a 900. High man for the night was Charlie Reid on games of 206-197-159 for the score of 562. Charlie's arm must have got tired in the last game.

Johnnie's Inn is still the team to post the scores in the County League at Harmon's on Thursday nights. The past week saw them piece together three games to hit 2825 and beat CLU by 325 pins only to lose a point in the last game. H. Miller was the big score as he hit 586 on 207-237-142. It seems to be the last game that has the let down for some bowlers, while other have trouble in the first.

The "B" league is getting around to gathering a few of the laurels now that they are under full steam and the Stroudsburg Auto Body team is the one responsible. When the club hit 2834 pins last week, it not only won four points but took over the number one spot in the county bowling, for high match. This gave them the record of 27 points won and one point lost. A record hard to match in any other league at this time.

Presbyterians and the Stroudsburg Methodist number two teams met last Thursday in the County Church League at the Potomac Bowling Center in what may be a record match of sorts. Presbyterians met up with 30 splits while the Methodist bowlers were gathering 36 to total 66 splits for the match. 300 splits would be a perfect split match, but 22% is enough for one night.

VEW has become Stroudsburg Candyland in the Record Major on Wednesday nights. The first night under new colors was a good one for the boys as they came up with high team match of 2629 and high individual single by Joe Yutz of 603. This enabled them to win four points from the Line Material bowlers.

Jake Nittel and the Square Bar were still rolling in the "A" League as Jake hit 622 on 198-226-198 and the team hit 2770 for four more points in its battle for first place. At the present time Bill Altier's crews hold on first place in the very slim margin of one-half point, which means the team must keep hitting all the time to remain there.

In the Legion Auxiliary League, they spread it around on Friday night with team honors going to the Easy Goers on 699 and 1832, but there was another tie match as the Hot Spots and the Woodpeckers rolled the Blue Jays also hit 1748, which makes three out of eight teams to wind up with the same total wood for the night.

Til Courtwright missed his 600 on Tuesday Night for Bushkill when he hit 599 on a well balanced match of 200-190-209. The Stump Jumpers and the Little Abners both gathered four points as they went on to retain and widen their hold on first and second place in the standings.

Another tie match popped up in the past week in the Potomac Bowling League last Tuesday. C. G. Bush and Sons and Kulp's Foundry tied away at 2356 to split a point for total wood.

Dick Fabel, secretary of the Dave Schmidt League and anchor of the Heico, Inc. team in that league hit his 600 last Monday. He hit 191-225-188, which totaled 604 and Dick's first this year. When he hit his 225 in the middle game his team won the point by one pin as he hit 333 to 332 for Shoemakers Signs.

Regina Hotel held on to the first place spot in the "C" League by taking four points from Tru-Matic. Hellman was high man for the losers as he hit 536 and as the team is getting better all the time, look out for the second half. It is a little late now for the club to do much in the first half, but it is warming up and is about to show the other teams how it is done.

Gap View Inn lost three points to Palace Diner in a close match in the East Stroudsburg Ladies' League, winning their lone point in the last game when Palace slipped and hit 699 while the girls from Gap View were getting 729. J. Treible was high in the league as she hit on games of 174, 180, 171 for 525 for Quick's Lounge in a losing cause as they also lost three of their four points.

The POS of A team won four points from the Odd Fellows at the Legion on Tuesday as they hit 2360 to come out second best for the night as the Diaper Service hit 2364 for four points and high for the night. High man in the league was Chase as he got 243 for high single and a new high in the league.

Crowe's Five Splits With League Rival

Bethlehem-Crowe's Insurance, for the second straight week, evenly divided four points with Duggan and Marcom, here at the Liberty alleys, on Saturday. The East Stroudsburg contingent won the second game and total pins, while the home team picked up points in the first and third games.

Jake Nittel was the big gun for Crowe's club, with games of 211, 206 and 178, for a 595 total. Frank Laise picked up high single honors for the East Stroudsburg team with a 219 count in the final game. John Javitt also bettered the 200 mark by five pins.

Lead For Paul Billiard and Bob Silfies led the home team's attack, as Silfies rolled games of 222, 193 and 194, for a 609 mark.

Buck Hill Man Creates Gift Certificate

A new, all-purpose negotiable gift certificate, the origination of a Buck Hill Falls resident, makes its debut in the United States early next week and is being groomed as a "boom" to retail business enterprise.

J. Edward Rush, a native Philadelphia who moved to Monroe County a year ago, is responsible for this new idea in gift certificates, which can be spent like currency for the purchase of goods or services throughout the United States.

Rush announced last night an agreement with Wyckoff Department Store in Stroudsburg to make available Monday the new form of certificate, called "Gift-Cheks" and similar arrangements with leading department stores across the nation.

The Gift-Cheks will be obtainable in single copies or books of tens and are issued by Remembrance Plan under trust agreement arrangements with the Stroudsburg Security Trust Co. Monies covering the face value are held in trust funds in banks and trust companies.

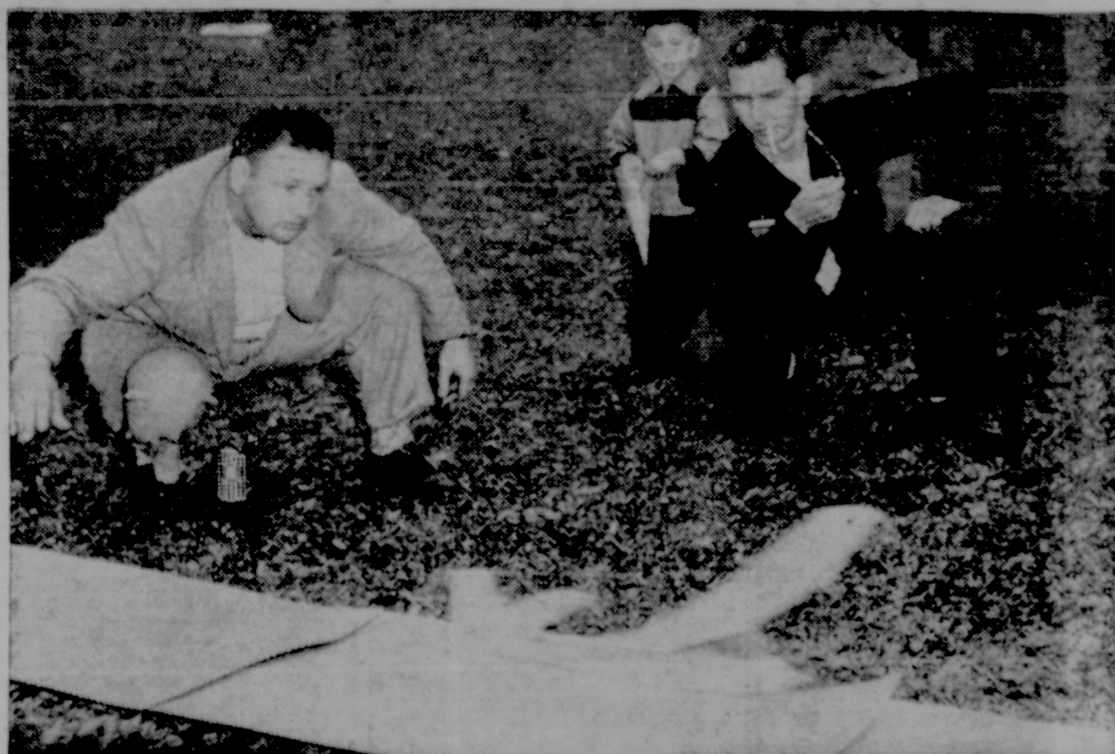

Like bank checks, the certificates are personalized and the user's endorsement will be required at time of presentation. The advantage of Gift-Cheks, Rush explains, is their negotiability, because amounts equal to the face value will already be deposited in trust funds.

Active in affairs in Barrett Township, Rush is a member of Pocono Mountains Rotary Club and the Parent-Teacher Association of Barrett Township School. His two sons attend classes there and another boy, one year old, is at home on Laurel Pine Road.

Rush said he originated the Remembrance Plan "to provide a new approach to the growing custom of gift giving, in keeping with today's needs." He added "the biggest market will be firms who desire to accommodate their customers, associates and employees."

The originator terms the certificates "personal" because they are always earmarked for an individual and do not embarrass the recipient. Ordinary gift certificates, Rush said, are limited to the redemption at the store where they are purchased and serve primarily the convenience of the giver. "Gift-cheks" says Rush, "put convenience on the other side of the fence."

Here is how the plan works: The certificates are printed on special process paper and resemble bank checks in form. The stub, certificate and identification stub, bear identical serial numbers; the face value is open as to amount. All identification stubs are retained by the Stroudsburg Security Trust Co. When a purchaser wishes to present a Gift-Chek, he writes in the amount, the name and address of the recipient on both the certificate and its stub (which he keeps for purposes of record). The duplicate stub is removed and mailed with his remittance to Remembrance Plan. Upon receipt, the identification stub for that particular Gift-Chek is then mailed by the bank to either the gift donor or to the recipient, as directed on the carbon stub, and the money covering it is deposited in trust funds.

There is no time-limit to the certificate, Rush said. They are good until spent and protected against loss or damage. In order to be valid the Gift-Chek must be accompanied by its identification stub, stamped by the bank.

During the Roman Empire the "Acta Diurna" were public announcements copied by scribes for dispatch to provincial subscribers as are modern newspapers.
